

Apple Huts

COLOUR ME IN

Apple huts are light-weight field shelters, hemispherical in shape and predominantly red in colour, hence the name 'apples'. They are constructed from eight basic curved wall sections and four floor panels, with an access door and clear window panes. The hut are fitted with a circular ventilation/escape hatch at the apex of the dome.

Apple huts have been used by the Australian Antarctic Program since the mid-1980s.

